Streng announced that the addition of the new turntable, which can turntable to control room equipment would greatly add to the efficiency of the station. Delivery date is uncertain.

The remote control unit, used in connection with sports broadcasts originating outside the studio proper, has been sent to the equipment repair firm and will be returned in time for the broadcast of baseball games this spring.

Journalism Clinic Attracts 43 Students

Attracting students from seven high schools, the journalism clinic sponsored by the Wartburg chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma, national journalism fraternity, Saturday, drew 43 students and advisers to Wartburg. Workshops of theoretical and practical newspaper, yearbook and IS magazine work.

Among speakers were the Rev. Harry Schmidt, director of the publications committee; Miss Marjorie Wilson, Wartburg dean; Norm Fintel, publications director, and editors of the three student publications and Elry Streng, KWAR director.

High schoolers visited the Wartburg independent-Journal printing plant, saw a mimeograph demonstration by a Waterloo firm and visited KWAR studios along with the Wartburg broadcasting building. Following the regular session they were guests of the college for supper and a basketball game.

Eight schools represented included Waverly, Orange township, Nashua, Maynard, Hartman, Shell Rock and Clarksville.

As Snow Squelches Early Spring Hopes Hubbard's Phenological Chart Optimistic

By Fred Gonnarman

It wasn't possible for February, but the thermometer read "Spring!" The Wartburg student body had almost unanimously hocked their winter clothes for lighter togs Then, at 3:30 p.m. yesterday, the Iowa inevitable happened. Snow fell . . . and young men's thoughts turned from love to snowball fights.

However, according to the phenological table recently put on display in Luther hall by Fred Hubbard of the biology department, the new season is definitely on the way in spite of present evidence to the contrary.

Fred Hubbard of the biology department points out sap flowing from the fresh stump in front of Luther hall as a sure sign of spring.

Record Started Feb. 14

Started Feb. 14, the phenological table is simply a record kept of natural phenomena of climate and biological changes that occur in relation to the arrival of a new season. Not necessarily a one-season project, regular records of the phenological type may be kept in continuous sequence.

Although the seasonal signs so far have been scattered, according to Mr. Hubbard, there have been definite observations made on campus. One of the biggest sources of information seems to be the trees.

Since the chart was started, buds have been falling from the maples like rubies, elm buds have been enlarging steadily and producing a tell-tale spring fuzz and the ash has been running a bi-freshly cut black walnut stump.

Although the perennial robin hasn't been spotted to date, several red-wing blackbirds, also migratory birds, have been reported in the area.

Entries Spurce

"Although a warm and cold spells have made entries on the phenological chart easier to date," stated Mr. Hubbard yesterday, "but we can say from the elements observed that spring is here."

Two hours after the statement was made it started snowing and it appeared as though winter was returning again.

That brings up an interesting question for all of the local pocons fest philosophers—"What is spring and are there any sure and safe signs of the season's presence."

Any answers and observations will be gladly accepted for entrance on the phenological chart, according to Mr. Hubbard.

Social Issue Discussed In Special Meeting

By Cy Wainscott

Campus social problems were discussed Monday in a special session of the Student Senate with Pres. C. H. Becker and Dr. A. E. Haefner, dean of faculty, present for action but is expected to recommend an extensive "discussion conference" when it convenes next evening.

Proposed members of such a conference would consist of the board of regents, representatives of college and Wartburg seminary faculties and administrations; members of the college Alumni association; presidents of the town, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Dakota districts of the American Lutheran church, and 1525 representative parents with varied vocations and opinions.

Senate Investigates Movement

The special Senate meeting was arranged to investigate a contemplated student movement to demand on-campus dancing.

Addressing the group Dr. Becker said, "A vote has been suggested to be—however, I don't think that issues such as this can be decided by a vote. It would be violence to one estate or the other. My suggestion is that you continue with what the board of regents has permitted you to do and recommend such a discussion conference."

No Tie With Deacons

He was quick to point out that neither board nor administration will sponsor or allow social dancing on campus and that the college has no official tie with off-campus dances.

Bob Vogel, sophomore Solon, pointed out that dancing was not the only issue involved.

"Perhaps," he said, "it has become a major issue merely because dancing is the easy way out of a poorly-planned social program."

Dr. Haefner attended the meeting to give views of the executive branch of the college and provide the group with pertinent information about that body. He indicated that the church has never made a decision or statement concerning dancing and would welcome any request for such a decision back to the college board of regents.

'People Like Being Asked'

"I agree with Mr. Vogel's suggestion to keep the social problem in mind," Dr. Haefner said. "People like to be asked to help solve problems," he said.

Following a lengthy questioning period, Senators discussed several aspects involved in creation of an adequate social program and the presentation of the discussion conference.

Two-Thirds Of Student Project Accounted For

Student body project chairman Ed Paape revealed this week that two-thirds of the $3,000 goal set for the ingathering has been either paid or pledged.

Through Wednesday of this week $1,217.65 had been collected in cash and $765 more had been pledged, bringing the total amount to $2,052.40.

Still to be figured in on the returns are contributions of North hall, Waverly students and new secondsemester students. This group, whose combined personnel is estimated at approximately 160, is expected to report its contributions soon.

According to figures on hand, $817.60 is still needed to reach the quota.

Schmidt Gets Leave For SUI Grad Work

The Rev. Karl Schmidt of the modern languages department has been granted a leave of absence by the Wartburg for the college's 1954-55 year to complete graduate work at the State University of Iowa.

Mr. Schmidt will major in Christian ethics and Bible and will seek a minor in philosophy.

Schmidt

"I will take leaving at Wartburg next year," he commented. "I feel my graduate work will make me a more able instructor here."

Conference Could Be Answer

The age-old question at Wartburg has made its annual appearance—dancing. But this time it is appearing in a slightly new form, as an offshoot of the even greater problem of social and recreational facilities. And for once the whole thing is being handled in a sensible manner.

Dr. Becker proposed to Senate Monday night that a conference be held on campus to discuss the entire social problem, which would necessarily include the sensitive dancing proposition. Everyone with any sort of relationship with the college is to be included in the conference. And it is here that the only reasonable way to handle the whole thing lies.

In recent years the dancing problem has been set before students, constituency, administration and faculty with ceaseless regularity. This year it seemed that another student poll would be taken to determine something which is already known—whether or not students would like to have campus dances.

Last year the poll took an unexpected turn. Students, wary of the feelings of much of the school's constituency, produced only a slight majority in favor of campus dances. A large percentage, however, indicated that they would go to the dances if held.

And a pu until Monday's key meeting there was again pressure for a student opinion ballot to be presented to the college board of regents. Then a proposal was made to bring the whole thing out in the open and categorize it under a much more important issue—the social problem at Wartburg.

The social program here is in a rather critical state. No matter how adequate it may seem from a faculty-administration viewpoint, there is little doubt that it needs revamping. And it must be revamped before the new union takes its place as a social center.

Dancing of course is not the magical cureall for the social headache—more than likely it has little effect in any way. But it is part of the social question—that cannot be denied.

Therefore it must be brought out in the open and discussed thoroughly and dispassionately among all parties involved. Whether or not the conference comes to any conclusion as to how much difference... But the air will be much clearer after everyone has a chance to know everyone else exactly where he stands. And perhaps some practical solutions for social improvement will be brought out.

And so it would be extremely wise for Senate to approve the idea Monday night and start working it out immediately.

Voice Of The Campus

MRS. WUEBBENS GRATEFUL TO COLLEGE

To the faculty, staff and students of Wartburg:

In behalf of Mrs. Anna to Dr. Neumann, the faculty, staff and students of Wartburg for their prayers, loving gifts, cards and expressions shown to her during the time of our accident on highway 63 on January 6th near Osage and since I have returned home. At this time I am permitting me to come home in a house and not a wheelchair.

The knowledge that so many kind loyal people were interceding and thanking of me helped make the pain bearable, and made me very humble. Thank you all—and may God continue to bless each of you.

STUDENT EXPLAINS LSACTION

To the editor:

At Thursday's convocation we will have an opportunity to express our thanks for the blessing of witnessing to the dancing words of Lutherans throughout the world. Love compels stewardship. Stewardship is love. Christian faith.

The Lutheran student movement is concerned with stewardship. We are being asked to participate in this service. It is not simply another campus organization asking for money. Lutheran Student Action is a way for us to serve the Lord in whose world we live.

By our contributions to Lutheran Student Action, the needs of students will be greatly reduced. LSAction is the working arm of the Lutheran Student association serving students throughout the world. Its effectiveness can be tremendous—but this depends upon your response.

Today this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another."

This guy across the hall's got one of those new record players with 3-D sound. I stopped in the other night, purchased my 3-D glasses at the door and sat down to watch this new wonder. You'll never believe it, but it works. Not only do you hear the music but you see it.

The first thing I saw were two little eight-tubers standing at the bar. They were arguing about whether a Ford was better because the [illegible] was on his best. It goes on and on like that.

Last Sunday evening Arthur Fiedler walked into the office of the motel to get his room. Lying on the desk was a Trumpet which he picked up and perused.

By the way, I noticed he was there.

Cy Wainscott, boy basketball-game announcer, strolled into the KWAR studios the other evening and watched Ken Diemer working at the control board.

"No," said Ken, looking a bit baffled obviously around the room. "You mean they can actually see us?"

I can tell spring is almost here by counting how many third-floor men are carrying in the afternoon. Students are getting lazy with spring fever, profs are getting ambitious because it reminds them of their youth and hard times are just around the corner.

THE TRUMPET RECOMMENDS

'God, Jesus And Man,' Giving Insight Into Religion

By Frank Pieper

Discussing three of the most important personalities of our Christian religion, "God, Jesus and Man" by Morton Scott Enslin and Calhorn gives its readers a picture of Christianity in a logical, insightful manner which is both refreshing and stimulating.

The work actually consists of three distinct books written for the Christian and the Christ and the Christian respectively, and then combined into one volume.

Enslin, writing on the subject of God, has made the obvious choice of the God which exist or have existed in the thinking of man. From this point he proceeds to analyze the Christian idea of God and the reasons for believing in Him. This first composition gives the reader new concepts and provides reading that is both interesting and educational on a topic most people are familiar with but do little thinking about.

Lyman's discussion of Jesus leaves something to be desired. Emphasizing the human aspect of Jesus, the author completely overlooks the divine nature until nearly the end of the writing.

Yet this second section is thought-provoking—often compelling the reader to stop and ponder for a moment.

The final section deals with the perennial question of philosophy, "What is Man?" Calhorn does not answer this question to our God and our fellowmen.

Pieper

Jesus, prior to His ascension to the Father commanded His apostles to go, to preach and to teach. In faith they went, the love of Christ constraining them to declare the good news of God's gift to mankind.

Faith Essential

A Christian is saved by faith, a viewpoint in love he is motivated to serve his fellow men. In faith he is a free man, in love he is the slave of his fellowmen.

Merely to say that we believe and to go no further is an indication of a shaky conviction. Our faith must be supported by actions or else it cannot develop its ultimate potential.

A working faith is a growing faith. It is nurtured by our actions and services to those about us. If we refuse to labor its growth and development will be stalled and our faith will become a dead thing.

Footnotes To Faith:

Back Your Beliefs With Actions

By Frank Benz

Our modern era has often been referred to as a "thinking" age. Never in the history of mankind have such advancements been achieved.

Modern medicine has developed to a mechanical heart. Progress in the scientific field has moved from atomic bombs and hydrogen bombs to the fine microprocessed solo marine. In 50 years man has net only learned to fly, but has constructed airplanes capable of moving much faster than the sound.

Amidst all of this the man of reason has become a victim of time clocks, appointments, schedules, and lines etc. He has become so involved in the affairs of the office that he hardly has time to relax with his family.

Why Greetings Short

He seldom sees his next door neighbor and when he does, a snappy "Hello" is the extent of his conversation. Sundays he spends in catching up on last sleep rather than making it a day for re-creating his soul and body.

Where are we serving, God or mammon? Jesus states quite clearly in the Sermon on the Mount that no man can serve two masters. Yet, we are trying to do it. Christianity has become a religion to be concerned with worldly affairs, to be too busy for service

STAFF SQUEAKS

ONE OF THE OLDER visitors to the Boston Pops was overheard giving a bit of free wisdom to a younger member of his party who said, "Why don't you quit trying to act like a violinist," he said, and be sincere?

BELIEVE IT OR NOT KWAR was to be picked up on the sunspots TV sets. The picture may not be any clearer, but if channel six is tuned in, it's possible to see an occasional spot variety of wave frequency markings.

PROVING THEIR VERSATILITY, one of the Pops musicians asked an usher for a few programs before the concert. "I'd prefer to know what I'm playing tonight," he said heading back to the stage.

SPEAKING OF USHERS, that reminds us that a vote of thanks for the efficient and speedy job they carried out with the biggest crowd in the history of the Artist Series.

4 Mat Squads Here For Loop Scramble

By Jim Sexter

Four teams are converging on the Knights' gym this afternoon and tonight eyeing the Iowa conference wrestling crown, which is now precariously perched on the muscled shoulders of the Luther Norsemen.

Preliminary bouts between the 26 participating grapplers will begin this afternoon at 2:30. Consolation matches are scheduled for 7:30 this evening, a prelude to the finals at 8.

Favorites for the four-squad meet are the Norsemen, defending conference champs and host power house of the loop. Wartburg will be the only team besides Luther to enter all five weight division. The University of Dubuque is not entered in the 130 or 167 lb. class and Loras will send only the cream of its 177 and heavyweight grapplers in the upper four weights.

Brandt Leads Knights

Heading the Wartburg contingent is undefeated Arnie Brandt, wrestling at either 167 or 177 lb., and Bob Dyke, undefeated 137-lb. grappler Brandt, a defending champion, has been one of the Iowa mainstays and is undefeated in two years of dual action. Dyke, a consistent winner, has one tie to mar an otherwise unblemished record this year.

Other starters for Wartburg are Bob Grendahl, 123 lbs., with a season record of three wins and one loss; Fred Roenfeldt, 130, one win and one loss; Bob Johnson, 147, with one win against five losses.

Coach Norm Johnsen

Top Weights Uncertain

Wrestling at 147 lbs. will be Ev Metzger, Loras, with a season record of four tie Brandt or Paul Reichold, 157, Loras, with a record of twelve wins, five losses, Brandt or Roger Hoffman, 167, Luther starters; Jerry Svoboda, Cedar Rapids, Iron Wright, Loras Howard Doe, 60.

Admittance to the afternoon session is free but there will be a 50-cent charge for admission for the consolation and championship matches in the evening.

9 Cagers Letter After 'Winningest' Season

By Dick Lynch

Nine members of the "winningest" basketball club in Wartburg's history were awarded varsity letters this week by Coach Ax Bundgaard.

Bomhoff

Riswold and Bomhoff picked up their third varsity monogram, Adix, Rubenow and Fritschel their second, while for the others it was the first award.

The squad elected Bomhoff as honorary captain for the 1953-54 season in recognition of his fine all-around play and leadership.

No other Knight cage team in history compiled a better won-lost record than this year's 18-5 mark. The conference champions of 1952 raced to 17 wins but lost seven games to trail the season's team on a percentage basis.

Bomhoff ranked Adix by two free throws to grab scoring honors with 325 points and a 16.8 average for 20 games. Rubenow tossed in 127 field goals but Bomhoff had a two-point advantage at the free throw line, 79-77.

From the field Adix was second to the Riswold with a .433 shooting mark. Rubenow topped the free-throwers with a .727 shooting, hitting on 79 of 109 tries.

As a team the Aixmen shaded their opponents in every statistical category. Figures show the Knights got certain touchdowns, .429 to .318 in field goals, .823 to .704 on free tosses, and averaged 69.5 points a game to the opposition's 62.6.

Axmen Finish With 15th Win

By Cy Walsnecht

Finishing the conference season with their 15th win, the Axmen trounced visiting Wartburg, 97-66, as Knight basketball fans saw four senior cagers finish their final game in a blaze of glory last Saturday night.

Starting off with a slow, cold pace quarter, the Knights never threw set the precedent of things to come as they went into the first intermission with a four-point margin, 19-15. Led by Harry Bomhoff and Bob Adix, the local quintet warmed up in the second period to 50-29, 46-33, at the half.

Going wild in the third period, the Knights potted 25 points to the Trojans' 11 to run the total up the closing one of the hottest quarters of the season. With three minutes left in the game the entire varsity was yanked after piling up a 25 point margin.

Adix led Knight scoring with 22 counters, followed closely by Bomhoff with 20. Ted Fritschel rolled 17, Ken Riswold collected 12 and Bob Rubenow hit for six. Dale Kuethe and Bob Vogel each picked up a charity toss to round out the locals' scoring.

Ted Fritschel goes up after a rebound in the Westmar game played in the Knights gym last Saturday night.

Pops Please Audience Sunday

By Fred Gonnerman

The audience applauded for more.

This tells the story of the Boston Pops tour orchestra concert directed by Arthur Fiedler in the Knights gymnasium last Sunday evening before a capacity-plus audience that bubbled over with gratitude for artistry which came from the hearts of 70 musicians and their congenial leader.

Presenting a two-hour program varying from light classical to popular satirist, the orchestra opened the evening with the Entrance of the Guests from "Tannhauser" by Richard Wagner and Carl Maria von Weber's overture to "Oberon."

After this duo of warm-ups, the group featured a smooth violin solo by Fritz Siegel and an exquisite harp background by C. Marie De Sarlena in the familiar "Arioso" by George Handel.

Giving a taste of the extreme versatility that was to come, the orchestra closed the first part of the program with Jacques Offenbach's suite from the ballet "Gaite Parisienne," including everything from an overture to a can-can. Unwilling to give the musicians a rest, the audience forced an interminable encore, "Limb Fugue" by Fiedler.

Featuring soloist Ruth Slenczynska at the piano, the heavier second part was presented with Concerto No. 1 in E Flat for Piano and Orchestra" by Franz Liszt. The powerful, moving Overture Solennelle from "1812" by Peter Tschaikowsky closed the middle portion.

Completely changing the mood for the final segment, Pops turned to the popular to present selections from Cole Porter's "I Kiss Me, Kate" and Jacob Gade's gypsy tango, "Jalousie," with its warm violin solo theme. Bringing mature thoughts of the cop and gown season, Fiedler's masters closed the program with Edward Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance."

Always wanting more, the audience was treated to four popular encores—"Mexican Hayride," "Look Sharp, Be Sharp," a satire of "Glow Worm" (including everything from fire sirens to cuckoo birds) and the ever-popular "Stars and Stripes Forever."

A congenial cut-up, Fiedler exclaimed with a smirk, "What is that? It's wrong progress," as somebody bonked plastic bats following the performance.

When asked about his favorite music, Fiedler confided, "I have no favorite type, class or single number. I like all the music I play and I don't like it. I don't play it."

Well pleased with both the audience and the auditorium, the baton-master expressed to the managers, "I liked this stage—here are the kind of risers we need everywhere."

Playing an exhaustive tour schedule of 42 concerts in 48 days, the concert personnel will travel a total of 8,000 miles before the end of the season.

Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops, shows pleasure as he takes one of his many bows in the Knights gymnasium last Sunday night.

Mead Will Discuss TV Prospects Mon.

KWWL-TV program manager Warren Mead will be on campus Monday to discuss prospects for a contemplated Wartburg program. The proposed program would feature and be produced by Wartburg students and would be a regularly-sponsored feature of the Waterloo station.

"Participation in production of a program of this nature would give students interested in television, from either a technical or professional angle, valuable experience that would otherwise be impossible," Mead said.

Students are invited to meet with Mead and hear discussion on the program Monday at 4 p.m. in the faculty lounge of Luther hall.
